

HISTORY

Originally located and activated at Naha Air Base, Japan on Aug. 10, 1948, the 51st Fighter Wing has continuously operated on the Korean peninsula since Nov. 1, 1971.

During its history, the 51st FW has been redesignated six times; and located at six different bases in the Pacific Theater.

The wing has flown 15 different types of fighter aircraft since activation, with the current air frames including the A-10C and F-16C/D.

In December 2008, the DoD changed the assignment policy for service members coming to Korea, which in turn opened hundreds of slots for Airmen to bring their families to Osan. Osan had 632 Command Sponsorship slots but have recently expanded to 860. Osan Air Base now offers many family friendly activities.

SUMMARY

Osan Air Base is located 48 miles south of the DMZ and is home to the 51st Fighter Wing, Seventh Air Force Headquarters and 24 tenant units, including multiple ROK Air Force units. Its airpower includes the A-10 "Thunderbolt II" F-16 "Fighting Falcon," and U-2 "Dragon Lady."

Osan Air Base is the most forward based permanent installation in the U.S. Air Force, as well as the largest USAF base on the Korean peninsula.

Osan's location and capability are strategic in fulfilling the Department of Defense's focus for stability in the Pacific.
